

Often Seen ~ but Seldom Passed

Many times on many highways you will glimpse the red Indian head that identifies a Pontiac Six from the rear. Sometime you will find a man at the wheel who shows that he's headed for distant points. Follow him hour after hour all day long. Follow him, that is, if your car will stand the pace.

When you do, you will witness a marvelous exhibition of high-speed endurance. You will see the Pontiac Six reeling off the miles, topping the hills with ease, sprinting past car after car. And if you could have it checked, from radiator to tail-light, at its destination, you would find it none the worse for hard driving, no matter how strenuous the trip.

The Pontiac Six is built for just such a test as that. That's why it's often seen on the road—but very seldom passed!
