RORY CALHOUN DRIVES THE SOUTHERN 500...

Starring in the motion picture, "Thunder In Carolina," Rory Calhoun plays the part of Mitch Cooper, former Darlington winner with injuries who puts his experience behind a rookie driver. Filmed on the dirt tracks of the South, "Thunder In Carolina" builds to a dramatic, thrill-packed climax which was shot right on the Darlington track during last year's "500."

Production was a real problem. For unlike a regular race, the cars had to perform over and over... stopping and starting in 136 degrees heat until the camera crew was satisfied with a "take." It was a gruelling test for cars and it could have cost the production plenty if one of them had broken down. That's why the producers of "Thunder In Carolina" used Wynn's Friction Proofing products in the cars to protect them against trouble... and every car came through trouble-free.

In front of the cameras or not, Wynn's Friction Proofing really gives a star performance. Use these products in your car to make it run better, longer.

THE Proof IS IN THE Performance!

COVER

Hot rodding knows no bounds. Dragsters and roadsters, movie rods and boats, street coupes and scooters; just about everything mechanical has fallen prey to the exceedingly inquisitive mind of the hot rodder. This month's cover depicts the vast scope of the rodding sport, proving that Hot Rod is definitely Everybody's Automotive Magazine.
