

can you tell which Tempest is the tiger?

Easy. The one on the right gets its power from Tempest's "4"—you know, the 4 that runs around acting like a V-8. So you have to call it a tiger. The other one has Tempest's new 326-cubic-inch, 260-h.p. V-8 tucked away under the hood. That's good for two tigers. At least. (Optional at extra cost. Grr.) Both give you Pontiac's Wide-Track stability. Which are you going to get? Your Pontiac dealer can help you decide.
