

Canada beckons! In recent years our neighbor to the north has greatly expanded and improved its highway system. And new, elegant resorts now complement such honored standbys as the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec City, Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper. Not to omit the Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay or Tadoussac, sentinels of comfort and the good life along the lower St. Lawrence River. The great resorts of Canada are a perfect setting for Pontiac's superb Grand Prix. Driving in Canada is fun in a Grand Prix, not only on the Trans-Canada Highway but in the challenging hills along the St. Lawrence or the green Laurentians. And, of course, people always look at the Grand Prix when it drives up to even the most luxurious resort. It's always the right car in the right place.

Pontiac SAFARI drove a Grand Prix to Quebec City and the Gaspé Peninsula for this issue. It was fun curving and angling up the narrow streets of Quebec City, a driving experience made memorable by the cornering and controlled power factors in the Grand Prix. And it was just as much fun dipping and turning along the highway which follows the Gaspé shoreline. Faraway places are no great challenge to the Grand Prix. It's a car for all roads in all seasons.

Canada beckons!
